Five stockings for men, women, boys and girls, have a reputation of being the best for wear, health, comfort and economy. Try a pair the next you buy. Thomas & Newcomb sell them.

Mrs. Annie Richards has as her guests this week Mrs. Thomas B. Parham from the country, and Mrs. Arch Taylor, of Oxford, and guests ever had a more gracious hostess.

Better say the word quickly and get in line with others, if you want to be represented in the GOLD LEAF's special illustrated industrial edition. The time is limited and space is being rapidly taken.

Thanksgiving day was observed in Henderson by a general suspension of business, and as a day of quiet and rest by those who did not go away from town or take to the fields with gun and dogs.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Whit Swain, a son, Mother and child—a lusty youngster—are both doing well, and the "old man" asserts himself with as much pride as a small boy with his first pair of trousers.

Returning from Greensboro where she spent Thanksgiving with her daughter who is at school there, Mrs. E. J. Jones, of Warren, returned over and spent Friday night in Henderson with Mrs. P. T. Jones.

An improvement has been made at the Pastime Theatre which will be appreciated by patrons—those who have to sit behind persons who wear big hats. An inclined floor has been put in, and the place will be decorated and improved in appearance generally.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham, of Panama, will be interested to learn that to them a son has been born. The interesting event occurred two weeks ago, and the young mother (formerly Miss May Whitfield) and child were getting along very nicely when last heard from.

Mrs. A. M. Jordan and son, Hugh, have returned from a mission, and visit to Staten Island, N. Y., where they visited a sister and brother of Mrs. Jordan who live in that place. They took in the Hudson-Fulton celebration and all the sights of New York they possibly could in so short a time, and had a most delightful trip.

The annual bazaar of the Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters and Sons, held in the armory Tuesday and Wednesday, and the entertainments given in connection, were well attended. Dinner and supper were served and fancy articles were sold, and altogether those who patronized the ladies had occasion to felicitate themselves beside the satisfaction of contributing to a worthy object.

Mr. Jos. P. Hayden received a telegram Sunday announcing the death of his son, Jos. at Houston, Texas, where he had been living for about a year employed as a telegraph operator. No particulars were given. Joe Hayden was a good boy, sober and industrious, and very popular, and the news of his death will be learned with sincere regret. Much sympathy is felt for the father in the death of a dutiful and favorite son.

W. T. Whitten & Company have sold their handsome soda fountain to a party in Baltimore, and it has been packed up and shipped to that city. They hope to dispose of the balance of their stock as a whole, but at this time there is nothing definite at present. At any rate they will close out between now and Christmas, and about the first of the new year, Mr. and Mrs. Whitten will go to their new home near Bedford City, Va., to reside.

Cooking Exhibit Well Attended.

The cooking exhibit at the Allen-Moss Hardware Company's store this week to demonstrate the lasting qualities of the South Bend Malleable range, has been well attended. Mr. J. W. Wiley, an expert from the factory who delights to talk range quality and range superiority, is in charge, and a cordial welcome, hot biscuits, delicious coffee, etc., are extended to all visitors. Mrs. W. E. Moss is there to give a homelike atmosphere to things for the ladies, and Will Moss, Sam Allen and George Allen were not let any man escape without carrying a South Bend Malleable range home with him if they could get it in his coat pocket. Each lady is presented with a fine imitation in miniature of the range suitably mounted as a hatpin souvenir.

Chase & Sanborn's coffee from E. G. Davis, Sons & Co., of Greensboro, N. C., and the cooking exhibit at the Allen-Moss Hardware Company, baked and boiled on a South Bend Malleable range—this is a combination that can't be beat.

As showing the small amount of heat that escapes up the flue, a section of pipe is removed and a "joint" of paper is inserted in its stead, making the connection complete. And the paper does not even scorch. Evidently there is no waste of fuel in heat going up the chimney where a South Bend Malleable range is used.

Rev. R. C. Craven Comes Back to Henderson.

Friends of Rev. R. C. Craven, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, are gratified that he comes back to Henderson. He has served this station three years, and there were many outside of his congregation as well as in it who desired that the statute of limitation (4 years) be allowed to run in his case. A number of strong preachers were to be replaced by this year and Mr. Craven expressed his willingness to sacrifice any personal preference of his own in order that the Henderson church might get one of these. But his people were willing to take chances a year from now, when he will have to leave anyhow, rather than have him go now.

Thanks His Friends.

Tom Bullock, the well known colored man who was for a long time in the employment of the town as driver of the town car, and the GOLD LEAF to thank his friends, white and colored, for neighborly kindness shown during the protracted sickness and death of his wife which occurred at their home on Rock Spring street November 20th. She had been sick nearly all the year and her suffering and needs were faithfully ministered to, which kindness the husband duly appreciates and feels deeply grateful for.

"Polly of the Circus."

The biggest show of the season with but a single exception, and one of the best plays that has been here at any time, may be put down to the credit of "Polly of the Circus," which was the attraction at the Grand Theatre Monday night. Differing from the ordinary type of drama, pure and sweet and refreshing, interest was kept up throughout the action of the play and while there was the feeling that one had been given the worth of his money, there was a desire for more when the curtain went down on the last act. Miss Fay Wallace was an ideal Polly, while Francis Yale proved himself a capable actor in the character of the Reverend John Douglas. Edward Saxon shared the honors with the stars as Uncle Toby, acrobatic clown and foster father of Polly, while Jules G. Davis, Sons & Co., of Greensboro, N. C., and the cooking exhibit at the Allen-Moss Hardware Company, baked and boiled on a South Bend Malleable range—this is a combination that can't be beat.

The Marguerite Smith Company Next

Accompanied by an excellent contralto soloist, and a skilled pianist, Miss Marguerite Smith, originator of the famous child impersonations, will visit Henderson next Wednesday night, December 8th, and under the auspices of the Radcliffe Entertainment Bureau, will appear at the Grand Theatre in one of the odd and delightful concerts that have made her a popular idol on the lyceum circuits this season.

Some years ago Miss Smith, already one of the most successful entertainers on the platform, turned her talents in a new direction, and began to explore the quaint and wonderful field of child life. The fascination she found there led her to the development of a new art in which she now stands as chief exponent. Her impersonations run the whole gamut, from the toddling three-year-old, playing its childish song, to the stubborn, pompous, or whimpering lad of twelve, and there is something altogether charming about their humor and pathos and tenderness.

The concert will be a refreshing departure from the ordinary and will give a new interpretation to a side of life never old and uninteresting—the quaintness and innocence of childhood. The musical feature of the entertainment will very attractively vary the entertainment.

The pianist will be Miss Edith Rhett, an accomplished young woman who has done good work elsewhere. Miss Olive Smith, the contralto, appeared for five consecutive seasons as principal soloist of the "Famous Smith Sisters," whose popularity extended from one end of the country to the other.—Adver.
